POTTERS DEPART FOR CONVENTION

N.B.O.P. Executives To Hold Preliminary Sessions

Members of the executive board of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters are heading for Atlantic City today for meetings preliminary to opening of the annual convention in the Jefferson hotel next Monday.

Enroute to the executive sessions, which will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, are James M. Duffy, president; John D. McGilivray, secretary and treasurer; George Chadwick, second vice president; George Turner, fifth vice president, and Joshua Chadwick, seventh vice president.

Duffy will preside Thursday with E. I. Wheatley of Trenton, first vice president; George Cook of Hamilton, second vice president; and Alex Young of Trenton, fourth vice president.

Mr. Duffy will preside over the board meeting, when plans will be completed for the national gathering, over which he also will preside.

A long list of resolutions have been drawn up for consideration by the delegates. Most of them pertain to proposed wage scales, this being a conference year, and are expected to take up the greatest part of the convention week.

Any changes in wage scales are expected to be proposed in August. According to an agreement between the N. B. O. P. and the United States Potters' association, these wage changes must be submitted 60 days before the expiration of existing agreements.

All sessions of the convention will be held in the solarium of the Jefferson hotel. The convention was held here last year and for the last session of the 1936 convention.

May Last Week
There was no indication as to how long the convention would last, but some said it might continue through the week, permitting delegates to remain in the city over July 4, the biggest week-end at the resort.

Delegates from here will leave Saturday and Sunday, many of them driving. Others are planning to turn to POTTERS, Page 9)

HUNT FOR DEAD NEARS END IN TRAIN WRECK

37 Bodies Found; Rescuers Finally Enter Sleeper

By The Associated Press.
MILES CITY, Mont., June 22.—Officials counted 37 known dead today as the search for victims in the crash of the Milwaukee road's "Olympian" neared an end at Custer creek.

Finally gaining access to sleeper B after several rebuffs in attempting to enter the submerged car, workers last night took three bodies from the silt-laden car.

Three more victims' bodies were pulled from the Yellowstone river yesterday, one of them 130 miles from the crash scene. Officials expected to find more.

The trim "Olympian" ace Chicago to Tacoma, Wash., train, crashed wildly into the creek, normally shallow, early Sunday when a "flash flood" loosened a 180-foot tree 25 miles east of Miles City.

Coroner's jury last night blamed no one for the crash, but attributed the derailment to the "flood waters in Custer creek."

Golf, Boxing, Swimming And Chicken Dinner On Field Day Card Thursday

The golfing field is set, the swimmers are poised, the boxers have struck a fighting stance, the food is ready for the ovens and the musicians are tuned up for what committees predict will be the most successful field day in the history of the East Liverpool Country club Thursday.

From the time the gates are thrown open at 9:30 a. m. until the last guest leaves the grounds in the late hours of the night, there will be someone to entertain, something to watch and something to eat for the 900 to 1,000 who are expected to tax the facilities of the club.

Highlighting the all-day function at 2 p. m. will be the St. Clair invitational professional golf tournament in which a field of 16 of the tri-state district's outstanding journeymen will vie for $200 in prizes over the 18-hole route.

First Ever Attempted
This event, first of its proportions ever attempted here, will be preceded by open golf and swimming from 9:30 to 1 and music and entertainment from 1 to 2, and followed by a full course chicken dinner at 5:30, boxing at 7 and a professional swimming exhibition at 8.

In the field for the golf tournament will be Ray Mangrum of Dayton, one of the country's leading shotmakers; Sam Parks Jr. of Pittsburgh, former national open champion; Vince Eldren, Pittsburgh Highland Country club veteran; Rader Jewett of Butler, Pa., former pro here; Perry Delvecchio of Greensburg, Pa.; West Penn open champion, Emil Loeffler of Pittsburgh Oakmont; Julius Platt of the Beaver Valley Country club of Beaver Falls, Pa.; Howard Zimmerman of Pittsburgh Wildwood.

Charles Manning of Pittsburgh Shannopin. A. J. Chapman of the Wheeling Country club, Fred Onorata of the Belmont Hills Country club of St. Clairsville, Joby Conners of the Chartiers Heights club of Crafton, James Blanton of Parkersburg Country club, George Howard of Canton Brookside, Alcroft of Youngstown Country club and Ted Luther of Church Hill Valley club of Pittsburgh.

A unique hole-in-one contest with prizes to the winners will be one of the many innovations designed to entertain golf enthusiasts.

Two Bouts Scheduled
Two boxing bouts were scheduled as a last-minute addition to the elaborate program. They will pit Mike Raffa of Newell against Tony Faciutto of Steubenville at 124 pounds, and Tad Dileotto of Wellsville against Larry Lewis of Youngstown at 144 pounds. Each will be over the five-round distance.

The swimming exhibition, which will feature a professional troupe in fancy diving and speed races, will be under the supervision of Ernie Grimshaw, instructor at the club's new pool.

Have Boyle, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette; Al Abrams, a member of his staff, and Charles F. Danver, conductor of the Pittsburghesque column on the editorial page will be among other members of the Pittsburgh Dapper

OVERCAST SKIES HALT MERCURY'S ADVANCE

Overcast skies were expected to keep the mercury within bounds today, the second day of a heat wave which Tuesday pushed temperatures to 87, one degree higher than the previous high reading for the year.

At noon the thermometer at the U. S. government observation station at Millport registered 83, two degrees less than at the same hour Tuesday.

Temperatures at dam 8 lagged about three degrees behind those at Millport, because of the proximity to the cool waters of the Ohio river.

2 MORE BRITISH SHIPS SUNK OFF SPANISH COAST

Lone Sky Raider Unleashes Bombs As Chamberlain Pushes War Truce

By The Associated Press.
Two British freighters were sunk in Spanish waters today as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, already severely criticized for failure to stop attacks on British shipping, pressed his efforts for a truce in the Spanish civil war.

A lone sky raider sank the freighter Thorpe with a well-aimed aerial torpedo and later returned to destroy the Union. A Chinese member of the Thorpe's crew was killed; all others were rescued.

The attack came just before Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons that Italy was anxious to put into effect the Anglo-Italian agreement covering Mediterranean issues but denied that Rome was trying to "drive a wedge" between Britain and France.

No Retaliation Planned
From Chamberlain's previous statements it was clear Britain would do nothing to retaliate for the repeated sinkings of British ships by planes which the London government believes to be Italian craft in the service of the Spanish insurgents.

Before Chamberlain spoke in the house the cabinet met, presumably to discuss the prime minister's efforts to bring about a truce in the Spanish civil war. Mussolini's known eagerness to make the Anglo-Italian pact signed at Rome April 16 operative was believed to be one of Chamberlain's weapons.

Addressing commons, the prime minister said that in the course of exchanges between Rome and London "the Italian government have made plain their desire, in which the British government participate, that the agreement should be brought into force at the earliest possible force consistent with fulfillment of the prerequisite conditions."

The conditions mentioned included "settlement" of the Spanish war, which diplomats have believed to mean an insurgent victory ending the conflict.

Franco Mags New Drive
Spanish insurgent advances indicated that Generalissimo Francisco Franco, slowed down to a virtual standstill in his drive on Valencia, was preparing a fresh offensive against Barcelona. He was said to believe that a successful drive through Catalonia would clinch victory for him.

In the Orient, Japanese planes twice bombed Swatow, Kwangtung province treaty port nearly 220 miles northeast of Canton, while warships stood by after landing several hundred marines on the nearby island of Nanyang.

The attack led to the belief that the long-awaited offensive was underway in South China to cut Canton off from the central battlefront. The Japanese campaign in central China continued to be stopped by the Yellow river flood.

In Berlin, the Nazi government continued its drive against Jews. Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels forecast new laws "to break Jewish influence soon." He said the time was not far distant when Jews would have lost their last foothold in Germany's economic life.

HALL CHINA TO SPEND $35,000 ON ADDITION

Expansion Will Provide New Manufacturing Space

A contract for new construction work at the Hall China Co. plant in Kiondyke has been awarded to the D. F. Neill and Sons Co., Malcolm W. Thompson, treasurer of the china concern, revealed today.

The estimated cost of the project is $35,000. It will form an addition on the south side of the present structure and will be of matching construction—brick, steel and glass. It will be used for additional manufacturing and warehouse space and will comprise approximately 24,000 square feet.

Prack and Prack of Pittsburgh are the architects. Work is expected to start the first of next week and is hoped to be completed in 90 days.

The new addition will be the fourth erected in as many years at the Hall plant, constructed eight years ago to take the place of structures in East Fourth st. and Broadway.

Two years ago a brick and steel annex was built on the north end of the main structure at a cost of $9,000. Houses a circular, gas-fired kiln. Three years ago the warehouse and clayshop were enlarged at a cost of $35,000 and in 1934 two large sections, costing $75,000, were added to the main plant.

The Hall China Co. has been in business since 1903.

Lehman's Bid For Senate Post Lifts New York Political Fog

Attorney General Of State Enters Governor's Race After Announcement

By The Associated Press.
ALBANY, N. Y., June 22.—New York's political fog lifted today as Democratic Gov. Herbert H. Lehman bid for a vacated U. S. senate seat on which the major 1938 new deal test will pivot and precipitated a scramble for the governorship.

Immediately, 44-year-old state Atty. Gen. John J. Bennett Jr. tossed his hat into the ring as a Democratic aspirant for the state's first four-year governorship as both Republican and Democratic leaders—long anxious to learn Lehman's plans—began belated discussion of opposing states.

The three-term 60-year-old governor's self injection into the national picture made more evident the fact that New York's fall balloting will be watched as a barometer of 1940's national trend, especially in view of the fact he is universally credited with dealing one of the strongest blows at President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill. State voters will also fill a second senatorial seat.

A Powerful Vote-Getter
Lehman, a powerful vote-getter once described by the President as "my good right arm," made the first fog-dispelling move last night in a printed 25-word announcement that he would accept the senatorial nomination, if his party desired him, to succeed the late Royal S. Copeland.

These were the rapid-fire developments:

(1) Speculation arose as to whether New York's junior Democratic Sen. Robert F. Wagner would be a candidate for reelection

Ohio Legislators Make New Attempts For Poor Aid

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., June 22.—Legislative leaders made new attempts today to break a deadlock over Ohio's relief program as senate and house members returned to the capitol for working sessions.

Speaker Frank R. Eble said he would call a caucus of Democrats as soon as possible to determine a course of action but confronting them was a virtual ultimatum from the senate not to reconcile differences between the two chambers on the excise tax extender and the relief administration measures until the house acts on two other bills on the senate program.

The latter measures would authorize municipalities to borrow against their 1939 liquor permit revenues and empower one subdivision of a county to transfer unneeded relief funds to another subdivision in need of such funds.

That left the caucus three possible courses:

1. Stand pat on the house's initiative for a conference committee to compose differences on the excise tax and relief administration bills.

2. Pass the two bills demanded by the senate.

3. Authorize a committee to confer with a similar senate group to iron out the situation.

Meanwhile a senate finance subcommittee recommended for passage a revised state building program measure and the upper chamber hoped to take it up today, although full committee approval is necessary first.

The program is predicated on the possibility of receiving federal funds through the PWA and the enabling measure provides for an authority with power to issue bonds that could be liquidated from rentals obtained from the state for use of the buildings.

AUTHORITIES ENFORCE BAN ON FIRECRACKERS

City police are enforcing the ordinance prohibiting the sale and shooting of fireworks within the city limits. Two East End youths were arrested Tuesday night and were released after a reprimand today.

Police announced the ordinance would be rigidly enforced throughout the city. It prohibits firing of all firecrackers, roman candles, sky-rockets, bombs, caps and torpedoes at any time within the corporation limits. The penalty stipulated by the ordinance is a fine of $20 and costs.

Wellsville Keeps Ban On Sabbath Baseball

WELLSVILLE city council turned thumbs down on a proposal to legalize Sunday baseball by a vote of 4 to 3 at Tuesday night's meeting.

The action was taken after receipt of a communication signed by representatives of seven baseball teams. Councilman Joseph L. Finney offered the motion that the ordinance be instructed to bring in legislation legalizing the pastime between the hours of 12 noon and 6 p. m. on Sundays.

The motion was seconded by Councilman H. J. Kampmann. Upon roll call Councilmen S. J. Adams,

SAWYER DENIES TIE WITH LEWIS

Ohio Legislators Make New Attempts For Poor Aid

By The Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, June 22.—"There are only two candidates for governor in the Democratic primary," Charles Sawyer, one of them, told a party meeting in suburban Cleveland Heights—and added that CIO Chairman John L. Lewis was not the other.

The Cincinnati, former lieutenant governor, replied last night to Gov. Martin L. Davey's charge that he was Lewis' candidate.

"Mr. Davey is trying to make John L. Lewis a candidate," Sawyer added. "He can't do it. The filing date has passed. I don't know that John L. Lewis would want to run, as he never told me so."

'Never Talked With Lewis'
"In fact, I have never talked with Mr. Lewis about this or any other matter, as I have never met Mr. Lewis."

To Davey's assertion in a campaign address that he had arranged personally with Lewis for CIO support, Sawyer retorted:

"I am sure that the voters of Ohio will not be fooled by this clumsy attempt on the part of my opponent to obscure the real issue in this campaign, which is—do you want Sawyer or do you want Davey for your candidate in November?"

Sawyer assailed Davey for what he termed lack of leadership in the state's poor relief problem.

Davey Actions Assailed
"How can we solve this or any other problem," he asked, "when the governor of the state is either in Columbus hurling the most bitter epithets at members of the legislature, with whom he should be cooperating, or is wandering over the state on a campaign junket x x x?"

At Cincinnati, Mrs. E. L. Hundley, president of the Hamilton county Women's Democratic club, said last night she was "shocked by the misrepresentation" of Davey who said Sawyer "brought two bus loads of women from Cincinnati to hood" him at the Akron convention of the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio.

"They went x x x unaccompanied by anyone," Mrs. Hundley said. "At this convention they were insulted by the treatment received at the hands of Francis Poulson (state Democratic chairman). They are now being persecuted by Gov. Davey."

"No Cincinnati woman booed Gov. Davey but did show the courtesy and respect due the office of the governor of the state."

Wellsville Keeps Ban On Sabbath Baseball

Mr. Finney and Mr. Kampmann supported the move while O. B. Kessel, W. J. Haugh, George White and H. H. Myers voted against it. Mr. Finney and Mr. White clashed over the merits of the proposal after the latter took the floor to speak against the change proposed to repeal a ban on the game established in 1914.

'Breaking The Sabbath'
"Young people can amuse themselves in ways other than playing and attending baseball games on Sunday," Mr. White declared. "We have six other days to enjoy the sport without breaking the Sabbath day. Let's not break that old ordinance."

Mr. Finney retorted that youth in Mr. White's younger days enjoyed Sunday at fishing and such pastimes and that young people of today should not be deprived of the opportunity for recreation.

He declared that the legalization of Sunday baseball would take the young people off the streets. Mr. Myers also expressed the opinion that six days was sufficient for the playing of baseball. Other members of council took no part in

ROPER SEES SKY CLEARER ON U.S. TRADE HORIZON

Declares That Signs Point To Upturn This Summer Or At Least By Fall

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 22.—Secretary Roper said today business statistics indicated a business and industrial upturn was likely this summer or at least by fall.

"Economic skies are definitely clearing," the secretary said in a prepared statement to the press.

"Many wise business leaders are now taking and all should take advantage of the summer season to implement their plans and methods for participation in the inevitable and now forming forward movement."

Good Signs Pointed Out
"Announcement has been made of large sums to be expended for plant expansion and improvement under the realization that where no wealth is created, none can be accumulated nor distributed. Bumper farm crops are beginning to move as reflected by rising demands for transportation. Credit is abundant and available.

"The merchant, the wholesaler and the manufacturer should prepare now to turn with the tide in order to avoid lost motion in the upward swing. I, therefore, am encouraged by the factors above enumerated and look to aroused initiative which will bring a gradual and not a dangerously accelerated business, industrial and economic upturn."

The commerce secretary said among the encouraging factors in the economic situation were the reduction of excess inventories in the hands of retailers and wholesalers and the removal of legislative uncertainties by the adjournment of congress.

Stock Inventories Lower

Roper announced that a survey of wholesalers' stocks showed inventories on June 1 were 14.5 percent lower than a year ago, removing a major obstacle to increased factory production. The decrease in inventories has amounted to 9 percent since early February, he said, and the only wholesale line in which inventories are higher is the heavy hardware business. He added:

"Since wholesale inventories are the most important single measure of accumulated stocks in the hands of business, these figures clearly indicate that excess inventories, as one cause of the present depression, have been largely removed."

Babson Says Business Definitely Is On Upturn

By The Associated Press.
BELOIT, Wis., June 22.—Rogers Babson, Boston economist, told the general council of Congregational and Christian churches today business definitely was on the upturn and that he looked for an improvement in employment and sales each month during the balance of the year.

"I would not be surprised to see a stampede for goods before the end of the year," he said. "The situation today is like the man flat on his back—the only way to look is upwards."

KIDNAPERS PERIL SON OF BARBARA HUTTON

London Residence Guarded After Reported Threat

By The Associated Press.
LONDON, June 22.—Silent guards watched the stately mansion of Countess Barbara Hutton Hagwits today after reported kidnap threats against the baby son of the five-and-ten-cent-store heiress who fled the United States because "I'm afraid of American kidnappers."

The countess merely said she had taken "certain precautions" to guard the child, two-year-old Count Lance Hagwitz-Reventlow. London's wealthiest baby, against a reported threat.

Her attorney said it was impossible to make a statement at the moment for legal reasons.

Scotland Yard was said to have posted guards at all ports and airfields to watch for the arrival from abroad of a "suspected person." Officials were said to have photographs and a full description.

HAMILTON WILL SPEAK AT G. O. P. RALLY HERE

John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman of the Republican party, will speak here sometime in October, according to word received here by Howard Cole, treasurer of the Young Men's Republican club, from Mrs. Katherine Kennedy Brown of Dayton, national committeewoman from Ohio.

His talk here will be part of a pre-election campaign in which he will stump the state. Mr. Hamilton will speak under auspices of the Young Men's Republican club. His address probably will be given in the high school auditorium, Mr. Cole said.

PWA Starts Pump Priming; President Sees Sharp Upturn

Starts Wheels Of Spending Machine As He Observes Advances In Agriculture And Industry Of Nation

By The Associated Press.
HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 22.—President Roosevelt threw into gear today a $3,750,000,000 machine designed to prime commerce and aid the needy, asserting as he acted that industry and agriculture already are improved.

Business—and he included farming in the term—is not and has not been as bad as a lot of people believed it to be, the President said.

He gave these views to the nation at a press conference in the warm little study of his Hyde Park home. News correspondents, crowding close to his desk yesterday afternoon, heard him touch on many subjects covering a broad field of foreign and domestic affairs, and scribbled furiously while he read a two-page statement on his signing of the huge lending and spending relief bill.

Answers Questions Freely
Mr. Roosevelt was in the best of humor as he talked. With his coat off and shirt collar unbuttoned, he answered questions freely.

At one point, by request, he authorized the newsmen to quote him directly, something he seldom permits.

"As somebody remarked the other day there have been a few raindrops coming from the heavens," he said, "and possibly they will be followed with a much-needed shower."

That was the President's answer to a question whether he believed business had scraped bottom in its downward trend. He sidestepped an inquiry about when the shower would come.

Mr. Roosevelt gave out a new commerce department estimate that the national income—the total income of all those earning money—would be slightly more than $60,000,000,000 this year, $5,000,000,000 higher than previous government estimates.

He also announced he would give one of his bedside chats from the White House Friday at 9:30 p. m., Eastern Standard time.

Talk To Be General In Subject
The President said the nationwide radio broadcast would be general in subject. It probably will cover business conditions, relief and how well congress carried out his legislative program.

He gave a hint of a possible item for the broadcast when he said that talk of the recent congress being a "12,000,000,000 congress was rot. That figure, he indicated, included measures authorizing future government expense but not carrying appropriations at this time. Furthermore, he said, a large portion of the money appropriated was for loans to be repaid.

The chief executive disclosed that he was a step ahead of congress on the $3,750,000,000 spending and lending money which he said creates a partnership between the federal government and localities.

For three weeks—two weeks and more before congress passed the legislation—he has been approving Public Works Administration projects, subject to signing of the bill, he said.

As a result, dirt will begin to fly within 60 days on projects using $350,000,000 of PWA's $965,000,000 new fund.

All but a little of that sum will be allocated within the next two weeks, the president added, commenting that PWA's money goes to work in the shortest possible time.

The Works Progress Administration, which received $1,425,000,000 from the bill, and other government agencies designated by the measure to fight the business recession were—like PWA—Mr. Roosevelt asserted, ready to do their jobs at once.

HAMILTON WILL SPEAK AT G. O. P. RALLY HERE

John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman of the Republican party, will speak here sometime in October, according to word received here by Howard Cole, treasurer of the Young Men's Republican club, from Mrs. Katherine Kennedy Brown of Dayton, national committeewoman from Ohio.

Allotments Of $41,632,717 In Grants And $9,021,000 Of Loans Distributed For Work On 291 Projects

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 22.—The Public Works Administration began its 1938 spending-lending program today with allotments of $41,632,717 in grants and $9,021,000 of loans for 291 projects.

Howard A. Gray, assistant administrator, said the 291 projects would involve $92,520,374 of construction. The grants were for 45 percent of the cost and the loans for 55 percent. The difference between the total of loans and grants and total of construction cost, Gray said, would be made up by the applicants.

Six grants fell in the million dollar class but the vast majority were from a few thousand to as much as a half million.

Southbury, Conn., led the list with a grant of $2,576,700 for school construction estimated to cost $5,726,000.

Others in Million Dollar Group
Others in the "million dollar" group were Fort Wayne, Ind., with a grant of $2,322,000 for $5,160,000 of sewerage improvement; Miami, Fla., with a grant of $1,800,000 and a loan of $2,200,000 for harbor development; Jacksonville, Fla., a grant of $1,670,455 for $3,712,122 of school construction; Shelter Island, N. Y., $1,637,131 of grants and $850,000 of loans for highway bridges costing $3,635,181; and Natchez, Miss., grant of $1,125,000 for a $2,500,000 bridge.

They had been approved by President Roosevelt even before he signed the $3,750,000,000 spending-lending bill late yesterday at Hyde Park, N. Y. He pen strokes were the signal for PWA and all federal spending agencies to swing into action with their programs, details of which have been ready for weeks.

PWA construction work will be allocated daily until 2,000 projects near the end of the fiscal year. The bulk is expected to be non-federal projects on which the government will advance grants for 45 percent of the cost and the applicants will put up the other 55 percent.

New Applications Waited
The first group of 2,000 projects will cost about $600,000,000. After this week, PWA allotments will be announced as applicants qualify for their share of the agency's $965,000,000 fund.

HANCOCK BOARD, STATE OFFICIALS CONFER ON LEVY

Delegation Sets Thursday To Discuss Plans For 9 New Schools

Special To The Review.
NEW CUMBERLAND, June 22.—President William G. Phillips will lead a delegation of Hancock county officials to Charleston Thursday to discuss with the attorney general the proposal for a levy for matching funds for a half-million dollar WPA school building program.

Mr. Phillips will be accompanied by A. L. Rabenstein of Chester, school superintendent, and Chester, school superintendent, and Chester, school superintendent, and Chester, school superintendent.

Authorized Monday
The Hancock board of education in a special meeting Monday night authorized the levy proposal for a vote in a countywide election July 26. Proceeds, estimated at $250,000 through a school rate increase under the levy limitation amendment, for three years, would be used as matching money for the WPA grant of $250,000.

The total would construct nine buildings with allocations figured on a basis of school population. The school rate would be increased 50 percent for the levying period. Persons registered for the primary would be eligible to vote in the 24 precincts for which pool officials will be selected immediately.

Two issues would be on the special ballot, the question "Do you favor a bond issue to raise $250,000 over a three-year period?" and "Do you favor increasing the school rate levies up to 50 percent?"

Success of the proposal was predicted. Sixty percent of the total vote must favor the propositions for passage. Both proposals must be approved as one hinges on the other.

Build Modern Structures
The proposed buildings would be modern and fireproof and erected on present school lands. A Negro school at Weirton is contemplated. Mr. Phillips termed "our school system a disgrace" in appealing for public support for the proposal.

The new rates would set a levy of 9.425 cents per $100 valuation for intangibles, 19.4 cents per $100 for homes occupied by owners and 39.5 cents per $100 for commercial buildings and dwellings rented to others.

the discussion.

A resolution calling upon the Columbiana county election board to resubmit the one and one-half mill levy for street lighting purposes at the Aug. 9 primary election was adopted. The proposed levy will be outside the 10-mill limitation and will run for a term of five years. The levy was adopted two years ago and will expire this year unless renewed. A majority vote is necessary for approval.

An ordinance granting full-time members of the police force and fire department a 15-day vacation with pay was approved by unanimous vote.

The ordinance was introduced following receipt of a communication signed by Chief John Fultz and two members of the police force requesting a 15-day vacation instead of 10 days as provided in an ordinance enacted in 1936.

The ordinance also continues the one day off a week for members of the police force and prohibits the employment of a special officer during vacation times to take the place of the man who is off duty.

The 15-day vacation plan had the approval of Mayor Howard L. Kelley and Director C. Fred Gluth. Chief Fultz thanked council for the approval.

The police force was instructed to break up the "dangerous practice" of two persons riding on one bicycle. Councilman Kessell urged that an ordinance prohibiting the practice be enacted but Mr. White said that the situation could be controlled by police without legislation.

Mr. Adams said the ordinance committee was now working upon legislation calling for the registration and licensing of bicycles. Mr. Kessell's motion for an ordinance was lost when Members White, Kampmann, Finney and Adams voted against it. Mr. Haugh and Mr. Myers supported the motion.

Service-Safety Director C. Fred Gluth was instructed to include Beech st., between Fogo alley and 11th st. in the blanket street improvement program after a petition signed by about nine property owners of the district was read.

A motion requiring that "new business" to be considered by council be in the hands of the clerk at least 48 hours prior to a meeting, also was adopted by council.

Emergency matters are exempted from this order.

Airs Drainage Complaint
Director Gluth advised council he had investigated the drainage complaint at 17th and Commerce sts. and that the trouble had been partially remedied.

He said the situation was due to the change in the sewer drops when the Huff & Lewis filling station was erected. He pointed out that the property owners who had made the change in the sewer would be responsible for further improvements found necessary. The communication was ordered filed.

The following balances in city funds were reported by City Auditor Howard L. Donnelly as of May 31, 1938: General $4,746.71; water works $9,567.21; cemetery $263.54; auto license $2,859.42; gasoline tax $4,428.78; cemetery trust $132.66; water works improvement $78,582.60; sinking fund $11,590.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts
The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or over-eat—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.
Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-sore for indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-sore for indigestion.

The county council made the appointment at a meeting here Tuesday night when the 1938-39 budget estimated at $58,641 was approved and forwarded to Charleston for state sanction.

Council President Alfred Mildren of Hollidays Cove said the budget represents an increase.

RIVER SHIPMENT SHOWS FURTHER DECLINE IN MAY

Allegheny Only Stream To Reflect Increase; Ohio's Tonnage Cut 55,637

Commodity movement on the three rivers in this district showed a further drop for May, figures released by the United States engineers at Pittsburgh revealed today.

Tonnage on the Ohio dropped 55,637 to 679,488 in spite of the increase in shipments of sand, gravel and petroleum. The increase in petroleum was 11,688 tons over April.

Although there was less coal moved last month than at any time during the previous three months, tonnage on the Allegheny showed considerable gain. This was attributed to the increased production of sand and gravel and limestone.

Allegheny Up 45,697
The total tonnage on the Allegheny was 155,547, or an increase of 45,697 tons over the previous month.

On the Monongahela, the total for May was 1,082,973, a decrease of 90,932 from April.

The Charles T. Campbell Tuesday took over a large shipment of steel products and a string of loaded barges at Marietta, for delivery at Memphis.

The steel was taken to Marietta by the John G. Britton, which also picked up the other barges from the Atlas in the vicinity of Weirton. The Britton returned to Pittsburgh with a string of empties.

The steamers Hubbard and Fairplay have passed Cairo coming up, while the Wishard, which passed here last week, is reported to have passed Evansville on its way down. The steamer Shawnee is moving gasoline on the Monongahela.

J. S. Christensen and C. L. Critchfield of the United States bureau of marine inspection and navigation are reinspecting the steamer St. Paul at the Pittsburgh wharf. The excursion boat will be used for the annual Propeller club outing Friday.

Piling Bids Stated
The United States engineers of the Savannah, Ga., district will open bids June 27 for the construction of 962 feet of sheet steel pile wall and 2,900 feet of river protection.

The Edward Henry Corp. of Dover, N. J., submitted a low bid of $128 for 40 bales of best grade unspun okum at 59 pounds for a bale to be delivered within a week at the engineers' storehouse at Charleston.

Traffic through dam 8 included the Henry A. Laughlin up with 14 empties and one barge of fuel; the John G. Britton down with two of gas; the LaBelle down with 10 of coal; the A. O. Ackard up with six of coke, and the LaBelle up with nine empties.

Army Of 100,000 Men Will Protect Britain's King And Queen On Four-Day Visit To France

2 Assassinations Linger In Minds Of Those Looking After Rulers' Safety

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

Associated Press Foreign Writer

PARIS, June 22—An army of more than 100,000 men—troops, reserve officers, guardsmen and police—has been mobilized to protect King George and Queen Elizabeth of England during their four-day state visit to France next week.

The Paris prefecture of police and the London Scotland Yard have drawn up plans to keep a ring of armed men around the British sovereigns.

In the minds of those responsible for their safety are two bits of European history—the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria at Sarajevo, the spark that started the World war, and the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia Oct. 9, 1934.

Next Tuesday, June 28, the day the British sovereigns will travel the 160 miles from Boulogne, their port of entry, to Paris, will be the 24th anniversary of Sarajevo.

Foreign Refugees Rounded Up
The slaying of the Yugoslav king occurred just after he had landed at Marseille on a visit to France.

To guard against the possibility of an attempt on the lives of the British couple, coming to show that the ties between Britain and France are at least as strong as those of the Rome-Berlin axis, the greatest protective service ever known in France has been devised.

As early as February, when George and Elizabeth accepted President Albert Lebrun's invitation to pay France the first state visit of their reign, the government started taking precautions.

A mass roundup was started among foreign refugees who had swarmed into France from Russia, Italy, Germany, Austria and Spain, many with political axes to grind.

Such a cleanup had been planned and often postponed, but when their majesties' coming became known, the government ordered that all foreigners without proper credentials present themselves to police before May 31.

More than a million persons were questioned. Many were supplied with identity cards but a number estimated as high as 100,000 were expelled. Then began the task of raising an army of protection for the royal visitors.

Armored Automobile Provided
The government ordered that 20,000 police be prepared for duty throughout the visit; 20,000 reserve officers in Paris were recruited as plainclothesmen; the war ministry assigned 50,000 troops to the task and the interior ministry about 10,000 mobile guards.

British authorities approved the plans, leaving the job entirely to the French except for Scotland Yard inspectors who serve as the royal family's bodyguard.

The principal problem is to guard the king and queen on processions through Paris. An open but armored automobile with high sides which no bullet could pierce has been made ready. Only the heads and shoulders of the king and queen will show over the armored sides of the car.

Walls of guards, five men deep, were ordered to line all routes over which the car will pass in state drives. All buildings along the routes will be searched and watched by inspectors.

Roofs, basements and subways will be guarded. Planes in radio contact with police will fly over Paris.

Warships will be on harbor patrol for the arrival of the king and queen at Boulogne and for the departure from Calais July 1. On railroads between the ports a pilot train will precede the royal special and stations will be closed an hour ahead of passage of the train.

At a cost of 8,000,000 francs (about $225,000) 400 workmen have complete restoration of the foreign ministry on the Quai D'Orsay where the king and queen will reside on their visit. Reception halls, dining rooms, salons and private chambers were refurbished in the empire style of the building, which was erected in 1845.

Daily Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, June 23
A FAIRLY lively day is suggested from the predominant planetary configuration. There may be rather surprising but not entirely profitable transactions, except in connection with writings and renewal of contracts. An undertone of intrigue or subtlety prevails in all relations, calling for circumspection, particularly in private affairs or intimate associations. Romance or sentimental situations may have a tendency to complicate matters or cause perplexity.

Those whose birthday it is face a year in which subtle, intriguing or complicated situations may cause much confusion and uncertainty. Although new contracts, agreements and all pertaining to writings might prove profitable, yet there is need for vigilance and wise management.

A child born on this day may be keen, lively, adventurous and romantic, with talent for the unusual and leanings toward the unorthodox, which may precipitate it into peculiar situations or intrigues. It may be a money maker, but funds will not "stick to its fingers" very long.

Six members of the family and four others who had handled the pets immediately started treatment.

Seasoning Increases Strength

In small cuts of lumber, greater strength follows a thorough seasoning of the wood. In large timbers seasoning is not always helpful, due to checks and other defects, developed during the seasoning. This information is valuable to the builder.

The East End Did It
EAST END residents need not be reminded of the days when Pennsylvania ave. was a veritable speedway. They can easily remember when unscrupulous motorists made the street, which lends itself so readily to high-powered driving, a place where no human soul dared tread.
The story is that East End residents did something about it, and today they have only the memory of a situation that was a constant menace to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.
Demonstrating their customary civic-mindedness, they launched a campaign for funds to purchase a police cruiser. That their efforts were successful is now a matter of record, and that their purpose has reaped its reward is a matter for recognition here and now.
Pennsylvania ave. today is a monument to traffic orderliness. Drivers who use the street day in and day out have learned the lesson of caution, thanks to the enforcement efforts of Patrolmen John Richards, Thomas C. Russell and Elwyn Shenkel, who alternately cruise there.
Eight arrests last week-end served notice enough that East End policing is an effective thing, that disrespect for regulations will lead to city court and that frequent violation may not end with fines.
Success of the cruiser already has more than justified the expense. It will continue to make the East End safe for child and adult alike. Its sponsors and those who are making the plan a success are to be congratulated.

Robbing Peter To Pay Paul
COUCHED amid six ordinances passed by the city council Monday night was one which introduced a new departure in the annals of local municipal government.
For the first time funds of the city waterworks, heretofore untouchable, were converted to another purpose, poor relief. This action was made possible by state legislation passed in January, to be in effect through 1940, which gives a municipality the privilege of using three percent a year of the gross receipts of any municipally-owned utility for poor relief. Its legality has not been tested in any court.
Council appropriated only $500 of an estimated $3,300 available for this year, yet the gross receipts of the waterworks in 1937 were $6,452.42 under the expenses.
Aside from the questionable constitutionality of the legislation making this action possible, its advisability from a business standpoint seems doubtful. The waterworks officials have made a real effort to reduce water rentals, and have been hampered already by the many delinquencies.
Now the way has been opened for a heavier burden this year, the next year and the next. Taxes will not be raised by this system, but most taxpayers may be forced to pay higher water rates.
It sounds easy, like so many new tricks of legislation, yet it is simply a case of robbing Peter to pay Paul.

Find The Ax
AS a change from predictions the Spanish war is going to be ended by another big push which will topple the stubborn loyalists, it now is predicted the end will come about through a true engineered by Great Britain.
In crime, the axiom is "Look for the woman." In diplomacy, it's "Look for the ax." With full allowance for appearances which may be deceiving, the ax in this case probably is the British-Italian pact, which cannot go into effect until Italy has withdrawn its troops from Spain. It is that ax which the British now are grinding with all their might.
Great Britain and Italy both want the pact to go into effect. Therefore, if Great Britain can devise a face-saving way for Italy to withdraw its troops from Spain, both governments will be pleased. If, on top of that, the true can be handled in such a way as to favor the insurgents as against the loyalists, without being too obvious about it, they will be more than pleased, because then the red devil would be scotched without any further international complications. Until further information is forthcoming, it's a reasonable assumption that this is exactly what's in the wind.

How To Win A Prize
A MORE pleasant pastime than signing petitions to do away with taxes would be hard to imagine. But before signing a petition to do away with the Ohio sales tax, there's one question for which every signer should have an answer ready.
How does he propose to replace the revenue which would be lost if the sales tax were abolished? If the best answer he can think of is "we'll cross the bridge when we come to it," he has no business signing the petition. The sales tax, itself, was created to replace revenue lost when a 10 mill limit was placed on property taxation.
Sales tax revenue, which includes the income from taxes on cigarettes, beer and wine, and gasoline, furnishes money for schools, public relief, street repairs and many other functions of government. Sales taxation is not popular, but who can name a tax which is popular, except among those who don't have to pay it directly?
The first man who can go to the state tax commission with a can't-plan-for-abolishing-the-sales-tax-and-replacing-it-with-a-tax-which-will-be (1) popular and (2) productive will be entitled to a gold replica of the seal of Ohio, with the rising sun represented by a diamond as big as an apple. The commission has been waiting a long time for a fellow who can do it.

A Clear Road Ahead
General Motors Expert Sees Registration Of 37,000,000 Cars By 1960 Despite Slump Today

AS the automotive industry goes "so goes the nation," is a commonplace in American economic thought. How is the automotive industry going? Straight ahead to a registration of 37,000,000 cars by 1960, despite a present output so low there is talk of closing some plants entirely. That is the mark predicted by Charles F. Kettering, research chief of General Motors.
Better cars, air conditioned, with motors under the back seat, instead of under a hood—with perhaps no hood at all—more efficient engines and added conveniences are expected to spur the motorbuying public into an increasing consciousness of the desirability of owning a car.
If Mr. Kettering's goal is attained by 1960 there will be an automobile for every three persons in the United States, compared with today's registration of approximately 25,410,000, or one for every five persons.
The present registration is more than 2,000,000 higher than in 1929, despite the recession. Reasons are a gradually descending price curve and greater liberality in credit.
Prices averaged $25 to the horsepower in 1929, were cut to $6.90 a horsepower by 1935, and today are approximately $7.50 a horsepower. The reduction was made possible by increases in the motor industry's efficiency.
REDUCTION in prices has not been accomplished at the expense of labor. Hourly wage rates in 1936 for automobile workers averaged 77 cents an hour, compared with a pre-depression peak of 75 cents in 1929.
Sales of tires and tire sundries in 1937 were valued at $398,235,000. In 1937, The 329,390 long tons of crude rubber used in making these products were sold at 54 cents a pound, a sharp drop from the 1929 crude rubber valuation of 87 cents a pound.
Figures for mechanical rubber goods show an even larger reduction in price. Last year 46,772 long tons of crude rubber were consumed in making mechanical goods. The material sold for $1.32 a pound, whereas in 1929 the price was $2.23.
Today's motor car, while some 27 percent heavier than a comparable 1925 model, has been stepped up 160 percent in power. The cheapest four or five passenger models in 1925 averaged 2,336 pounds in weight and developed 32 horsepower. Last year, the average weight was 2,962 pounds and the rating 83 horsepower.
IN the postulated march toward the 37,000,000 car goal, many new jobs will be created. In 1929, when all plants were operating at or near capacity, total output of passenger cars was 4,587,000. Last year 4,751,520 cars were produced. There was some slackening of the output rate after October, 1937, but it seems fairly evident full time capacity on an annual basis is still somewhat under the 5,000,000 mark. Stabilization near the 5,000,000 figure would insure increased employment.
Because the maximum life of most cars is eight years, and the average life nearer six, the entire present plant capacity would have to be operated full time to replace a registration of 30,000,000 cars every seven or eight years, to say nothing of 37,000,000 cars.
Predictions are that present auto manufacturers either will develop plants with greater capacity or that men with initiative and energy will come along to start new companies to compete with existing ones. Either course will result in millions of dollars of new investments, new equipment and buildings, besides addition of thousands of jobs.
That is the hope, the prospect, of the automotive industry as seen through the fog at the present depression. It shows a spirit that will might overcome the nation's present economic difficulties.

In the Shanghai fighting he commanded a machine gun unit . . . knee deep in water, he remembers . . . He has forgotten his music . . . or so he says . . . We leave him for the dusty streets of the village . . . dry, biting, choking dust that comes in waves, heated by the sun . . . it coats a jangling artillery column coming back for a rest . . . it darkens the faces of a Chinese farmer and his wife as they hack away at dry, arid soil, wearily symbolic of war and its hardships and the effort at rehabilitation. It stings the eyes of war refugees waiting for their ration of flour . . . An old Chinese, with all the history of China, patience, suffering, hunger, in his face, tries to tell you eggs . . . and smiles at you . . .
Across the river the marks of war . . . a skeleton rotting in the sun . . . a leather shoe protruding from the ground . . . a mound of small stones and a wooden marker . . . where a Japanese soldier fell in battle.
The Japanese officer with us goes to the post and back . . . He takes a cigarette from his box . . . and places it in a cup half filled with water at the foot of the post . . . The Japanese who died at this spot liked cigarettes . . . if you are living you share your cigarettes with the dead.
Young Japanese soldiers march red faced in the sun . . . They are new to war . . . The sun has yet to blacken their faces . . . They are a new part of the machinery of war . . . they still stare at the scene around them . . . they take photographs of smashed, ruined buildings, stare impassively at Chinese squatting in the ruins . . . The Chinese stare back, impassively . . . and no one can tell what the Chinese really are thinking . . . It's a thought that bothers you . . . what do the Chinese think of it all? . . . But there is no answer to that . . .
BUT life goes on, sketchily . . . Old women haul patiently at bundles of wood . . . their backs bent over her washing on the edge of a river a Chinese woman pauses to look up at a low, circling air plane . . . In houses broken open by artillery shells, children play freely, aware only of hunger and weariness.
It's all a part of war as seen from the Japanese side . . . a fantastic blending of the stern and the efficient, the pathetic and the strangely gay, the pounding of guns and the low whispering of old Chinese women . . . Over a large earthen pot a Japanese soldier washes his clothes in company with three Chinese women . . . and talks with them companionably . . . You stare, somehow, in disbelief . . . and over it all, triumphant, the sound of Japanese warplanes.
Did the Chinese remove the remains of Dr. Sun Yat-Sen from his mausoleum on Purple Mountain when Nanking was evacuated six months ago?
Or does the founder of the Chinese republic still rest in his $10,000,000 tomb, with Japanese soldiers now standing guard outside?

Ohio Anecdotes
THOMAS CORWIN, an Ohioan noted for his wit, humor and oratory, was elected to congress in 1830. He made his first political speech at Petersburg, Highland county.
The man who accompanied Corwin as rather sober effort, except, perhaps, the conclusion.
"My speech," concluded the young orator, "is now ended. No doubt you are all excessively weary. I can say most conscientiously that I am, and my mouth is as dry as a powder-horn. I propose that we adjourn without further ceremony, to Capt. Jessup's and refresh ourselves. I can certify to the high quality of the article he keeps."
The suggestion won over his listeners and he was not only elected to congress, but 10 years later he was elected governor of Ohio.

The U. S. Soldier
He's Claimed Still To Be 'Naive On Discipline, Excellent On Attack, But Lacking In Endurance'
By DAMON RUNYON

AN ESTIMATE of the 1938 model American soldier by a seasoned officer of modern warfare is interesting. It indicates our lads have not changed much in military disposition.
The officer is Lieut. Col. Vladimir Copic, who has just quit the command of the 15th International Brigade fighting with the loyalist army in Spain and including a considerable number of American volunteers. Copic is a Yugoslav and it seems to be generally agreed he is a swell soldier.
He says of his Americans that considering they had no military experience they made excellent records, though he found them "some what naive about discipline." They thought when they were not fighting they needed no discipline. Unlike the French, Czechs, Germans, Slavs and Bulgarians, the English and Americans had to be taught from the beginning how to handle a gun.
"In action," Copic says, "the Americans were excellent in attack but they haven't much—how do you say it—endurance." He described as typical of them their practice in training of shouting and cheering "like children," during the mock battles.
If he had inquired into that practice, Copic would have learned that it probably traces back to the Indian fighters of the earliest days of America who may have picked it up from the Redskins themselves. He might have learned, too, that this shouting and cheering "like children" once reached a vocal pitch among American fighting men as they charged that made it more frightening than the roar of artillery. It was then known as the "rebel yell."
YOU MUST remember that Copic is talking about American volunteers who lacked, as he says, trained officers. Soldiers of this type are not to be compared with our regulars - or even our national guardsmen.
You must remember, too, that Copic's Americans were fighting in a cause and under circumstances that perhaps lacked the motivation and the spirit that would prevail were they fighting under their own flag. Probably many of the Americans in Spain regarded the war as an adventure.
However, it is well to bear in mind that Copic's Americans are in general the same type that America has always had to call on to win its wars—the same identical type that America would have to use if we went to war tomorrow, inexperienced and even naive. The American volunteer in all our wars has always been that way.
Copic's comments are a good answer to those who suggest that millions of fighting men would spring to arms overnight in this country in the event of war. They might spring, all right, but of what service they would be until they had been trained is something for the master minds of the anti-militarists to answer.
The Yugoslav's statement that his Americans did not know the first thing about handling a gun will not surprise the officers of our army in the World war, who had to train thousands of kids from cities in the manual of arms. Few of them knew one end of the gun from the other.
THIS nation used to pride itself on the fact that Americans were almost instinctively acquainted with a rifle. That was a long time ago, when this was a nation of hunters and of frontier home defenders.
When we went to war we found we had to recruit our soldiers from cities, where they had few opportunities of familiarizing themselves with fire arms. Our great combat divisions in France were made up largely of city fellows.
Once thoroughly trained, a man from the lower east side of New York, who may never have seen a rifle except in a shop window, makes just as good a soldier as a chap from the north woods who can shoot a squawer out of a tree with a rifle at 200 yards. The east sider may eventually be the better soldier, too, because he is more amenable to discipline than the woodsman.
Our soldiers of the Revolution, when the fighting was slack were inclined to go AWOL and in all our wars our volunteer soldiers have chafed at discipline and have never failed to express themselves on that point. We remember asking one of our American generals in France about a certain division made up almost entirely of non-professionals. He said:
"That's one of the greatest fighting units I ever saw."

A Fair Inquiry
Lawrence Says Congressional Study Of Monopoly Deserves Businessmen's Cooperation And Encouragement
By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 22 — Businessmen generally have been unduly apprehensive about the meaning of the anti-monopoly investigation which has been authorized by congress. Fears that it would merely be a muck-raking quiz have been widespread. They have been based on the assumption that all new deal investigations cannot have any other purpose but to smear business.
In the case of the anti-monopoly inquiry, such an assumption is unjustified. For many years businessmen, labor organizations and government officials have been saying that the anti-trust laws need revision. The Roosevelt administration recognized this need concretely when, over the protests of men like Sen. Borah of Idaho, the national industrial recovery act was passed in which a suspension of the anti-trust laws was permitted. Since that time, Attorney General Cummings in public addresses has called attention to economic results which seemed to imply collusion in making prices and argued that, even if these acts were within the letter of the law, the trend toward certain price-fixing evidences should be thoroughly studied.
The action of congress in taking the request for an anti-monopoly inquiry was granted at the request of the President, but it is also true that the plan originated in the department of justice where the attorney general, buttressed by experiences with the NRA, felt that some sort of comprehensive survey should be made before congress undertook to revise the existing statutes.
Businessmen really ought to cooperate with the committee. The chairman, Sen. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, is a fair-minded individual who can be counted upon to keep the inquiry out of the mud puddles. He is a searcher about facts. Studies in connection with his bill to require federal licensing of corporations has given him a definite interest in the subject of monopoly. The President has been represented as leaning upon occasion toward the licensing idea, but it would appear that because a solution of that kind can be intelligently discussed more information is needed concerning the complex character of American industrial operations.
THUS it will be interesting to have the new committee develop publicly just why so many identical bids are given for government contracts and why competition has occasionally become restrained due to the desire of large and small competitors to avoid price wars that are costly, if not destructive.
The Sherman anti-trust law is nearly 50 years old. It has had a profound effect on American economic evolution. Today the nation is groping for some kind of a regulatory plan which will eliminate the unfairness and fraudulent ingredients which may appear in competitive devices and at the same time avoid anything which looks like a subsidy or artificial aid to weaker economic units. For there are plenty of ways of granting a subsidy without actually using government funds.
The anti-monopoly inquiry comes at an opportune time. Its activities will coincide with efforts at economic readjustment in which government action itself is already playing a vital part. Thus, the fixing of minimum wages and maximum hours, the establishment through collective bargaining of fixed union scales, and the fixing of freight rates all tend to make costs rather uniform in given industries and to curtail gradually the margin above cost within which there can really be any competition. With so many cost items fixed directly or indirectly by government, the opportunities for a struggle over a minor percentage of profit tend to cause some competitors to keep out of each other's territory or away from each other's customers.

WHAT is lacking today is incentive to competition. Here the subject of taxes, federal, state, and local, as well as government regulation, comes into the problem. The anti-monopoly inquiry could be of constructive value if it surveyed all industrial operations, and particularly the effect of uniform labor costs and uniform labor rules on the chances of one company providing incentives to its employees for a higher quality and perhaps even greater quantity of production so that the economic shibboleth of the hour—bigger volume at lower prices—may be realized. It would be a heartening thing if the O'Mahoney committee really penetrated the whole economic system from a strictly factual side so that the problems of making the capitalist or individualistic system work would be revealed in clearer perspective than they are as a rule through the attacks made by demagogues and politicians.
The businessmen of the country will make a mistake if they assume a hostile attitude toward the O'Mahoney committee. Here is a chance for the businessmen frankly and voluntarily to tell their side of the story of American economic operations. Here is the first real opportunity for them to put the facts before an interested public. And here, too, businessmen will find it possible to reveal what the disadvantages are of government price-fixing.
For the fixing of transportation prices—a huge element in distribution costs—has itself played havoc with the economic system. Were railroads permitted to engage in real competition with each other and to meet the competition of other forms of transportation, there would be less of a chance for so many prices to be fixed with the freight rates as the only differential.
The O'Mahoney committee has a chance to do a job as useful to America as any of the many famous commissions which have preceded the enactment of major legislation.

The Vanishing Hired Man
From The New York Herald-Tribune
ALL over the northeast, from Virginia to Maine, the urge to own a piece of land, to be a sort of "gentleman farmer" even if on a small scale, has been very strong for the last several years. This urge may have its origin in a nostalgia for the soil, or a desire to find a place of peace and productivity for approaching age. Whatever the many reasons, we have observed the trend.
It is a good sign, a healthy trend, if there ever was one, and most of the new farmers are happy over their new venture. But most of them have the same complaint: it is almost impossible to get a competent hired man.
Now, a hired man is a necessary fixture on any farm, and his role is even more important when the owner is a city chap, forced by the rigors of his life to spend much of his time away from the growing things.
The life of a hired man used to be rather tough. He might not be an agricultural expert, and his outlook on world affairs might be somewhat limited, but he, nevertheless, was indispensable.
He was drawn away from it by the call of the industrial cities and the delusion of high wages. Farms went to weeds and underbrush. Old houses fell into decay. The horses vanished and the implements rusted.
Now the tendency in many sections is the other way—but still the hired man hasn't come back. He would, apparently, prefer to stay in the city even if that means idleness or being on the WPA rolls. This is too bad. His lot on the farm, under new ownership, would be infinitely preferable to what it used to be. He would, in most instances, be given much more consideration, and he would have some time for leisure and for those noble dreams which even the lowliest sons of the soil are said to harbor.
Where to get these men? There seems to be no agency which has tackled the problem with any success. We have had resettlement projects, road building schemes and what not, but the honest, able hired man remains elusive. Indeed, there are whole communities where there is not one horse or plow, and some have only one plowman—usually a haughty fellow, who will plow your field when he gets good and ready.

FARM SPEAKER URGES GOSPEL'S USE AS PANACEA

Of Cooperation

Special To The Review.
LISBON, June 22.—Cooperation as a panacea for the economic and social ailments affecting civilization was urged by Rev. James Wyker, pastor of the North Jackson Community church, who addressed 200 members of the farm bureau and their friends at a meeting Tuesday night in the First Presbyterian church here.

Gospel As Solution
"The gospel of Jesus Christ is the only solution to the economic and social problems facing our country today," Rev. Wyker said. "That gospel is written in terms of cooperation rather than competition."

The speaker commented on the cooperatives established in the Scandinavian countries, pointing to them as examples of what can be accomplished when communities work together and the improvement they bring in the life of the farmer.

"In Denmark," he remarked, "farms can not be taken away from farmers by mortgage holders. It is possible to buy chattels but not soil."

Cooperative Philosophy
Rev. Wyker also described a model community as a place with a cooperative philosophy of life. Elaborating on this point he extended the idea of cooperation to churches stating the varying religious groups in a community should not compete with each other, but should work as a unit. The address followed a dinner.

The address business session, W. J. Hays, president of the county bureau, presided, conducting the business meeting and introducing the speakers, Roy Frederick, an official of the Mahoning county farm bureau, gave a brief talk following Rev. Wyker, describing some of the activities in which he is interested.

A Tiny British Princess Learns To Make Beds

—DEWITT MACKENZIE—

NEW YORK, June 22—There is a delightfully homely touch in the news from London that little Princess Elizabeth, who is slated to succeed her father as ruler of the British empire, is learning to make beds.

It imparts a glow of friendliness to learn of this housewifely pursuit of a small girl whose weight is scarcely enough to tip the scale against the crown jewels and other emblems of regal power which presumably will be hers one day.

This schooling in household affairs is no "stunt" devised especially for Elizabeth. She is following a tradition which has existed in the royal family for generations.

The princess is studying bed-making and cooking as a member of the Girl Guides (America's Girl Scouts), but if she weren't learning these things as a guide, she would be getting them from her mother, Queen Elizabeth, and from her grandmother, Queen Mother Mary.

Princess Elizabeth's mother has learned the intricate business of being queen of the world's largest empire, but her thrifty Scotch soul revels in all sorts of housekeeping.

As Duchess of York, Elizabeth supervised all details of her home. She early established an enviable reputation for economical conduct of her establishment.

Queen Mother Mary always made her home one of her chief interests throughout the 26 years of her husband's reign. She actually took charge of household affairs in the various palaces, including Buckingham Palace with its 150 servants.

She even supervised personally the annual spring house-cleanings—some job, in view of the fact that one scarcely could travel the corridors of Buckingham Palace on a bicycle in a day of hard pedaling.

Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth always have done the shopping for themselves and their children.

The training of twelve-year-old Princess Elizabeth will not include so much of the household lore as was imparted to her mother and grandmother. She will be a queen in her own right—ruler of a vast empire—whereas they have been merely helpmates of monarchs. Her schooling must delve deep into affairs of state, finance, economics, constitutional law, social problems and what not.

The small girl is learning all the R's and other things which ordinary children study and in addition she must acquire proficiency in foreign languages. Gradually they will pile on her slender shoulders the weight of knowledge which goes with the throne, that she may become another "Good Queen Bess" or a Queen Victoria.

ago, leaving only one-tenth of the population to drift back from the surrounding countryside? And it's war you must learn about.

Monsignor Cassini comes in. His energy is almost terrifying against your own fatigue. He sweeps into the room as though dust and heat didn't exist. His words are a jumble of French and Italian and English, when he speaks too fast. His eyes are clear blue and tremendously alive.

"I shall tell you what happened at our girls' school here. It was shelled, you see. Perhaps, you will not believe. But it is true. You will believe? No?"

A brother brings wine, cool, sweet wine, with the flavor of peaceful sunshine in it, and you try not to gulp at it. Bishop Cassini half rises in his chair.

"They shelled the school. A shell came through a doorway."

"Three sisters are in the room. One sister is making the bed. The bed is blown to pieces. The door is torn from its hinges. The sister is not hurt."

"A third sister is bending over a clay water pot. The pot is broken into countless pieces—in her hands. She is not hurt."

Monsignor Cassini spreads his hands—wide.

"I see," says the British newspaperman. "A sort of miracle."

"Ah, yes," says Monsignor Cassini. "A miracle."

"What a story!" says the French newspaperman, in English.

"Nobody hurt?" asks the Japanese colonel. His military mind is puzzled.

"Nobody hurt," says Monsignor Cassini, and the sweetness and gentleness of the man make you grab at your wine glass. "Is it not wonderful?"

You glance up at the crucifix. And the ticking of the clock, set at Chinese time, is very loud. Three sisters, picking themselves up off the floor of a room, un-hurt...

You walk back into the blistering sun.

"What a story!" the French newspaperman keeps saying over and over again.

"Come where the sky is brilliantly blue"

SAYS Burton Holmes, WORLD-EXPLORER ON ADVENTURE TOUR

"THERE'S A MARVELOUS HILL-COUNTRY right here in OHIO!"

Rolling hills! ... Sweeping hills! ... reaching high to the heavens... that's not Switzerland, nor the Pyrenees, nor the Scottish Highlands, but eastern and southern Ohio! ... just a few hours drive from your own home.

"And take a word from one who has seen views from all sizes and shapes of hills and mountains. There certainly are some of the finest down in those south central Ohio hills."

"Why as far as the eye can see there are green, waving fields... here and there white painted farmhouses... and nestling under the kindly protection of stalwart hills are peaceful villages and thriving towns."

"Drive anywhere along the mighty Ohio where it forms the southeastern boundary and you will find yourself in the picturesque Appalachian hills of Ohio. North of Woodsfield, is a township that is actually named Switzerland, and once you see these rolling highlands you will know the term is apt indeed."

"To the north, near New Philadelphia, you will find Schoenbrunn, where some of the first white settlers set foot, and where some of the original log cabins and houses have been restored. The road from there to Coshocton takes you over some of the grandest hill country in the state. Near Newcomerstown is the Old Stone Fort, and on to the west, at Gambier, you'll find old Kenyon College in its perfect setting.

"Roll on down to Newark and you'll see the storied Indian mounds; then see ancient Flint Ridge, near Gratiot, the working place of men of bygone ages. Visit Zanesville, where the old royalty of France once was received. And by all means don't miss the country east of Zanesville; the roads leading into Cambridge are masterpieces of nature's plan."

"Then swing south to the valley of the Muskingum to McConelsville and head to the southwest for Glouster. Visit the mighty Hocking State Parks, where the wild rock-bound gorges form one of Ohio's most unique beauty spots. And at Chillicothe, you will see the hills immortalized on Ohio's official state seal."

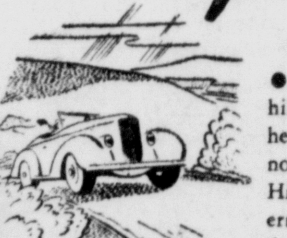

"Oh, you'll see dozens of places along the roads that you'll want to stop and visit, just as I did. So don't hold back for fear it's rough traveling. It's not—the roads are great. And best of all—you don't need to travel long distances. Many places are within a few hours drive from your own home. So go adventuring yourself; see Ohio's own 'Switzerland.'"

In The Theaters

Ol' Black Joe

Columbia Film Recreates Southern Aristocracy In Melodrama With Evelyn Venable As Star.

The whole spirit of the southland is evoked in "My Old Kentucky Home," now at the Columbia theater.

The story concerns two representatives of a wealthy, tradition-bound Kentucky clan whose romance goes smash when Larry's night club singing protegee poisons herself and him on the night his engagement to Lisbeth is announced. The story hits headlines and Granny Blair, matriarch of the family, takes charge as Gail, the entertainer, and her ambitious brother Trent arrive at the plantation. Trent plots to marry Lisbeth's young sister, while Gail, repentant, helps Larry hide from Lisbeth the blindness that threatens him as a result of the poisoning. All these problems come to a head at the centennial celebration of the foundation of Blairstown, and are suitably solved, leaving Larry and Lisbeth enjoying the singing of the Hall Johnson Choir.

Evelyn Venable returns to the screen to play Lisbeth, Grant Richards is cast as the son of the Blair family, and Clara Blandick is memorable in the role of Granny Blair. Cornelius Keefe is a suave villain, and Margaret Marquis a sweet Lucy Belle.

It's ranchers against gold rustlers in the new Hopalong Cassidy drama, "Bar 20 Justice," the second feature. In order to avenge the murder of one of their friends and to save the inheritance of the man's widow, William Boyd, playing the famous Mulford hero, defies the most daring thief in the Western cattle country.

Dread Disease
Cure Possible,
Physician Says

Proper Treatment In Early Stages Ultimately Will Eradicate Disease

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
THROUGH the newspapers, radio and other methods of spreading knowledge, the public has been educated in the dangers of venereal disease. It is hoped that as a result of the energetic methods of control and treatment now formulated, this scourge will be completely eradicated.

Today I want to tell you some simple facts about syphilis. It is a dangerous disease and often overlooked in its early stages. Indeed, all too often it is not recognized until great damage has occurred. It is extremely dangerous because it is readily passed from one individual to another.

The disease can be transmitted from mother to child. It is a frequent cause of miscarriages and stillbirths, as well as involvement of the heart, arteries and brain. It causes stroke, blindness, deafness and other distressing effects.

The germs of the disease enter the body, usually causing a sore at the place they enter. This sore is medically known as a "chancre." Sometimes the chancre is located in an inaccessible portion of the body, a place where it may easily be overlooked.

This sore ultimately heals, leaving behind a slight scar. But this is not by any means the end of the trouble. The poisons reach the blood stream and are carried to distant parts of the body where they may do great damage.

If the disease is recognized in the first stage, or the chancre is still present, treatment should be started immediately. This treatment, if continued, will ultimately entirely eradicate the disease. The treatment takes much longer if the infection is allowed to run on to subsequent stages of the disease.

Let us see what happens when the chancre is overlooked and no treatment is begun. Several weeks after the sore is healed a rash appears on the skin. This rash is peculiar in that it does not itch. Sores appear in the mouth and throat. Swelling of the glands may be present. Headache, fever and bone pains may occur. The hair of the scalp and eyebrows may fall out.

Physicians are often asked whether syphilis can be cured. The answer is definitely yes. But this is true only if proper treatment is given. Unless applied in the early stages of the disease, it will be necessary to report to the doctor at least once a week for a period of a year or more.

The treatment can only be given by a physician. So much depends on the honesty of the doctors that it is well to avoid those who advertise and certainly those who are not licensed to practice medicine. If there is any doubt as to whether you require this treatment, consult your family physician or the local board of health.

The Sunlit Road

By TOM T. JONES

IN a Unity township cemetery, not far from the Pennsylvania state line, once stood the Koch church with one of the most active and flourishing congregations in the township.

The church was erected more than a century ago and was used for more than 90 years. It was torn down, but there are excavations to mark the exact spot the building occupied.

The cemetery is crowded with numerous graves of early residents of the county. Many who sleep in this cemetery were Germans who came from the Lancaster section of Pennsylvania. The church is said to have been named for Martin Koch, an early Columbiana county settler, who was township treasurer from 1856 to 1874.

The home in which Martin Koch resided is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Lipp and their family of five children. In it Mr. Lipp was born, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lipp, who now live in Youngstown.

In the old Koch cemetery are buried the parents of Lewis Lipp and the grandparents of Curtis Lipp, Samuel and Catherine Lipp. The former was born in 1818 and died in 1897. His wife, also born in 1818, died in 1899, eight years before her husband.

Lewis Lipp visited the old cemetery recently to look upon the resting place of his father. Although 82 years of age, Mr. Lipp possesses a keen memory of his younger days and when he and his parents worshipped in the old Koch church. The church was served by numerous pastors, one of them Rev. Martin Luther Eich, remaining for 25 years.

On the west side of this old church stands high and stately oak trees, which for many years shaded the building. Beneath them were rows of sheds which sheltered horses and vehicles while their owners were attending services. The church at times was so crowded it was necessary to place additional chairs in the unoccupied places. Many funerals were largely attended when held in the church, Mr. Lipp recalled.

The Story So Far: Assey Mayo, Cape Cod detective, is investigating the murder of Marina Lorne, whose husband's post office murder has enraged Quonomet. She was killed by a left handed blow from the knife of her sister, Pam Fry. Interested parties are: Tim Carr, once married to Marina; Roddy Strutt, whose alibiing plane crash was deliberate; Peggy Boone, an artist; Jennings, an irate plumber; and persons unknown who burned down the Fry's barn, baffled Assey, Tim and Pam's father, destroyed Jack Lorne's mural sketches and defaced the mural itself. Missing is a $10,000 lump of ambergris belonging to Pam, which several people saw on the beach from Roddy's plane. Then Roddy disappears.

CHAPTER 41
The Big, Bad Biffer

"ALL I got to say," Assey twirled the spit, "is that you better find him and bring him back in just 15 minutes. Brother Strutt, or you'll be struttin' into a jail. Do I make myself clear?"

Roddy's father was almost in tears. "But I tell you—"

"Neither Elliott nor me," Assey said, "was born yesterday. You find Roddy, and find him quick, or the house of Strutt'll be cold turkey."

"He's gone," Carveth sobbed. "He was here before you came, and now he's gone. That man's got him!"

"If this is an act," Assey said, "it's one of the best I ever seen outside a theater. Elliott, will you explain to him that I want Roddy, without any more tears or squeaks?"

"But it's that man Jennings," Carveth said. "It's that man Jennings!"

"Oh, it is? You mean Earl Jennings, the plumber?"

"Yes," Carveth said. "Yes, it was most unfortunate. I'm sure we did everything in our power to make things right, and then this mural—"

"What's this?" Assey asked. "Jennings' daughter," Elliott explained while Carveth blew his nose.

"And now," Carveth said, "he's done what he threatened — he's kidnapped Roddy — and why don't you two do something about it?"

"Earl Jennings," Assey said, "is over in the Pochet hospital. I seen him there myself—"

"Most unfortunate his being hurt in that plane crash," Carveth said. "Most unfortunate, as I told Roddy, why couldn't he have picked some one else. But of course that would have been satisfactorily adjusted by the family, just as the other unfortunate incident was adjusted. I told Jennings that myself, last night."

"He was in the hospital last night," Assey said. "Oh, no, he was not!" Carveth retorted with a show of spirit. "He was there, here, threatening us! After I saw you at Octagon House, and threatening Roddy, too. He seemed to think that he had been put into that mural because Roddy told Mar — I mean, told Lorne to put him in. And that accident—"

"You mean to say that Jennings, Earl Jennings, the plumber — he was here last night?" Assey's eyes lighted up.

"He was," Carveth said. Assey smiled, and remembered the conversation he had had with the nurse about Jennings. If he had had the slightest bit of intelligence, he should have guessed. What was it she'd said? Something about "So Assey had heard what went on about Jennings—"

On The Loose

"It seems to me," Elliott said, "that I did hear something about Jennings on the loose last night. He goes off on busts, you know. They're the talk of Quonomet. They used to be the talk even of Company B in the old days."

"Listen to me," Assey said to Carveth. "I'm comin' back here in an hour, and you produce Roddy for me. Elliott's goin' to stay here with you, an' see that you don't, you. Elliott? Right. You see he finds Roddy, if you have to fight another Chateau Thierry. Here, he handed over the 45. "You take this, an' find Roddy. I'm goin' over to the Pochet hospital an' see Jennings. I happen to know that he'll be there."

The nurses crowded around him by the desk. "Assey," Susan said, "you certainly did the trick! We haven't had a peek out of Jennings since you were here. He went to sleep like a little lamb—"

"I want to see him," Assey said. "Quick—tell me if he got out last night."

"Yesterday afternoon, shortly after you were here. They say he was on a tear, but he really hadn't had much to drink. His wife and the doctor made him come back this morning — they simply couldn't quiet him down. It's that mural and the pipes that have got on his nerves—"

She opened the door carefully. "I think he's asleep—"

She and Assey stared at the empty room. Assey brushed past Susan into the hall, and raced back to the desk.

"Scuse me," he said, and grabbed the telephone. "Hello, this is Assey Mayo. I want to talk with Hanson of the state police—that's right. Ask the Quonomet exchange where he is—right."

Susan whispered breathlessly to the other nurse. "Hello, Hanson? Oh, Lane. Listen. Take some men, go over to the Strutt place by the beach. Hunt for a fellow named Earl Jennings, and for the young Strutt boy. There's a Congressman here named Elliott. He'll explain everything to you. You want Earl Jennings an' Roddy Strutt. Got that?"

He listened for a moment. "That's it, Lane. What do you do when you get them? You sit on them both. Oh, an' phone to the barracks—get Jennings' car plate numbers from someone. Have the roads watched, for fun. That's right. I'll be over."

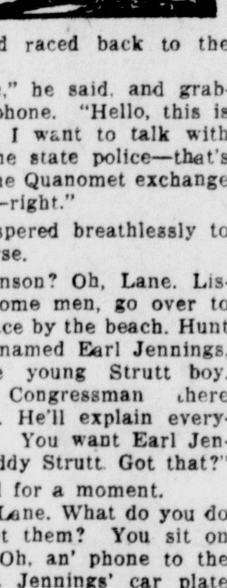

He put the phone down, stared reflectively at a chart on the desk and then picked up the receiver again.

"I want Octagon House, over in Quonomet," he said. He whistled under his breath as he waited.

"Octagon House—that you, Tim? Tim, have you got troopers there? Well, leave one at the house, take the other an' go over to Jack Lorne's — he's still there? Okay. Take a trooper an' go over an' stay. The biffer's loose again, an' he might come for Lorne. That's right. No chases this time, Tim. Tell those fellows to get him."

"What?" Susan began. "I ain't got time to tell you," Assey said. "Oh, why didn't we tie that fellow up?"

The idea of the slender Jack Lorne tearing Jennings apart was somehow irresistibly funny to Assey. It appealed also to Timothy.

"Does he mean he'll do that to the biffer?" the latter wanted to know. "He does? Oh, no, Jack! No. I've had some brief experience with your spunker, and I'll tell you for your own good, just you let him have his way, and forgive him freely."

Jennings is nabbed, tomorrow.

Marry-Go-Round

By MARY ROWLAND

Flexible Hearts

EQUALITY between the sexes will be just an illusion, you mature endows woman with a iron stomach, a shock-proof conscience and a flexible heart.

During courtship we feed each other flattery in large portions; after marriage, we just dole it out grudgingly as though the doctor had cut it off our diet list.

No man can be a great lover and a chronic wit at the same time. A girl can possibly make a Prince Charming out of a man who bursts into a wise-crack before her lip-rouge is dry on his cheek.

A man's soul lies so close to his digestion that when he goes into the silence, a woman never knows whether to offer him a kiss, a good meal, a dose of philosophy or the bicarbonate of soda.

As long as a woman is single, some other woman is always picking out a husband for her or urging her to marry that nice man. Every woman considers every other woman's heart-affairs her business.

This is the time of year when the average bachelor has half-a-mind to get married, and that's about all the mind he uses in picking out the girl.

BANK EXAMINING RULES MODIFIED

Readers Adopt Plan To Spur Long-Term Loans

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 22.—Government financial leaders attempted today to put some of the $2,730,000,000 idle bank funds to work for business recovery by revising bank examination rules.

Settling factional differences, officials of five agencies which govern every bank in the country agreed to modify examining procedure so as to encourage long-term business loans.

The changes also will permit national banks to resume purchases of bonds of small companies whose securities are not listed on stock exchanges.

The experts agreed that the major obstacle to business credit expansion was lack of loan demand from eligible businessmen, but one high official termed the agreement "a constructive effort which should help promote credit expansion and recovery."

Others said the compact's main importance was the achievement, for the first time in the nation's history, of a uniform basis for bank examination, which is divided among four federal and 48 state banking agencies.

Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury said that the agreement was a compromise of "give and take." He withheld the details pending its submission to President Roosevelt.

Morgenthau and others glossed over evidence of strong personal feeling on the banking issue between himself and Chairman Mariner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board. On Monday Morgenthau had given Eccles 48 hours to approve recommendations of other agencies before they went to the White House.

OHIO G. A. R. TO ELECT NEW CHIEFTAIN TODAY

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., June 22.—Frederick Pfister of Cincinnati and Dr. A. B. Garrett of Gallipolis were up for election today to succeed Theodore Wells of Cadiz as state commander of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Wells was endorsed yesterday as a candidate for national commander and the veterans, in convention here, voted to meet in Columbus again next year.

A parade today was the highlight of the 72nd encampment at which 40 of Ohio's 150 surviving "boys in blue" were registered. Also participating were five affiliated organizations.

One of them, the women's relief corps, elected Mrs. Grace Ford of Warren, president, but deferred halloing for other offices until today. The Sons of Union Veterans auxiliary and Daughters of Union Veterans also were to select officers.

Story Of Glass Making Told To Rotary Club

THE manufacture of modern glass was described in a slide lecture by Roy B. Johnston of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. at the Rotary club noon meeting Tuesday.

Mr. Johnston first told of the early processes of making commercial glass, in which blowers took globs of the molten material from small furnaces and blew them into long cylinders, swinging them while they were blown.

Roller System Used
This method, he explained, was unsatisfactory because of imperfections and varied thicknesses, and was soon replaced by roller systems.

Further slides showed the operations of a modern plant, in which molten glass is poured between two rollers cooled as it is raised slowly 50 or 60 feet in the air. This method keeps the glass at the same thickness and prevents twisting by the gradual cooling, he said.

The plates then are placed on a grinding table, where they are polished by felt on sand and red rouge, he said.

Mr. Johnston then discussed some of the modern uses of glass and its manufacture. He gave a detailed account of how safety glass is made by pressing two plates together under high temperature.

New Tempered Glass

He then showed several slides on the new tempered glass developed by his company which will resist tremendous blows. Several of the slides showed Hank Greenberg of the Detroit Tigers throwing a ball against it and hitting it with a bat. Greenberg broke the bat.

The meeting was in charge of Lawrence Smith. Next week William H. Vodrey will be the program chairman.

PUBLISHERS APPEAL INCOME TAX DISPUTE

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 22.—The Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., owners of the Marion Ohio Star, today had appealed to the Supreme Court a tax dispute arising out of payments in 1930 and 1931 to Mrs. Abigail Harding Lewis, sister of President Warren G. Harding.

Sale by President Harding of his interest in the Star June 18, 1923, included a clause guaranteeing Harding an editorship for 10 years at $15,300 a year after he left the presidency. In the event of Harding's death the sum was to be paid to his widow or his estate.

Harding died Aug. 2 the year the contract was signed and a compromise settlement was made with Mrs. Harding. Payments were made to Mrs. Lewis in 1930 and 1931—the only years in issue—following the death of Mrs. Harding.

The corporation was assessed $3,350 for an income tax deficiency for the years 1930 and 1931, the government contending that the payments were part of Harding's interest in the paper and not, as the corporation contended, an ordinary and necessary expense.

STOCKS RESUME BULLISH TREND

Profit Taking Urge Halted As List Advances Again

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 22.—Wall Street's bull forces broke through profit realizing today to start stock market prices up again in a resumption of the big upward push which started Monday.

Non-ferrous metals, rails, aircrafts, can concerns, farm implements and scattered specialties drew most of the attention. Metal shares were helped by higher prices for lead and zinc.

Quoted a point or more higher were St. Joseph Lead, Cerro de Pasco, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, American Can, Continental Can, Westinghouse, American Tobacco "B," American Telephone, Loews, Air Reduction, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, International Harvester and Caterpillar Tractor.

Cotton and wheat were lower. Corn was about steady. Hides and rubber were sharply higher.

To buoy the more cheerful mood of trading forces was a variety of news tending to support the conclusion of some analysts that the business situation might be at bottom and prime for a reversal.

Hides lead and zinc, scrap steel at Pittsburgh also was quoted higher. The latter is considered by some a pointer indicating the course of activity in the steel trade.

Wall Street forces combing the news for explanations of the market improvement in recent sessions noted the two-point lift in steel operations for the current week over the previous seven days estimated by "Iron Age," as symptomatic of the "floor" being established by many economic barometers.

Analysts pointed out that the important index of electric power production, announced today for the week ended June 18, had shown a moderate decline, contrary to the upward trend to be expected at this season.

Second quarter earnings reports, soon to come to light, were a major subject of discussion.

(4) Possibility grew that Manhattan's prosecutor, Thomas E. Dewey, may be drafted as the Republican gubernatorial nominee.

(6) Friends of New York's Republican-Fusion Florentino La Guardia, with whom Lehman disputed New York's relief needs last winter, were reported to have protested to the President against Lehman's possible nomination.

Lehman's term as governor expires next Dec. 31.

He came to the governorship in 1933 as successor to the newly elected President Roosevelt, after having been the latter's lieutenant governor for four years, and was reelected two years later. BENSON LEAD GROWS IN MINNESOTA RACE

Has Commanding Margin In Battle For Governor

By The Associated Press.
MINNEAPOLIS, June 22.—Gov. Elmer A. Benson today held a commanding lead over former Gov. Hjalmar Petersen, his opponent in a bitter race for nomination as Farmer-Labor candidate for governor, as incomplete returns from Monday's primary election straggled in.

Leadership of the state's dominant political party was at stake in the voting, which, for a time, seemed to give the advantage first to one, then to the other candidate.

With returns in from 3,169 of the state's 3,739 precincts, the vote stood 187,413 for Benson, and 178,333 for Petersen.

A close race also was in progress in the Democratic party, with Thomas Gallagher, young Minneapolis attorney, holding about a 2,500-vote margin over the nearest of five opponents for the gubernatorial nomination. Fred Schlipplin, St. Cloud publisher.

Returns from 3,116 precincts gave Gallagher 19,694; Schlipplin 16,958.

Leading the Republican field of four, Harold Stassen, Dakota county attorney, had an apparently unbeatable advantage over Martin Nelson.

Wells Trio Must Bear Down Today

COLUMBUS, June 22.—East Liverpool's three representatives in the annual Ohio Amateur golf tournament, which started over the Scioto Country club course here Tuesday, Joe Wells, Junior and Senior, and W. E. Wells, turned in identical scores, 81, in the opening qualifying round and today were forced to the necessity of bearing down in order to gain a place among the select 32 who will start match play Thursday.

Bob Servis of Dayton, three-time medalist in the Ohio Amateur play, led the field at the end of the 18 holes with a par-smashing 70, three strokes ahead of Dan Carmichael and Allen Rankin, both of Columbus.

Scores registered by the field of 132 simon-pures competing in the tournament indicated that 158 would probably be necessary for qualification, in the match play.

Thus, the Wells trio was aware of the fact that each member would have to pare at least four strokes off his Tuesday score to get into the play. Joe, Jr., and W. E. Wells each took 41 going out and came in with 40, while Joe, Sr., went out with 40, and came back with 41.

Ev Hall, also in Columbus for the meet, was forced to drop out, having sprained an ankle before the qualifying started.

Servis first led the qualifiers in 1933 at Springfield when he won the crown. Last year at Canton Servis again topped the qualifiers, but since he qualified automatically as champion, he turned the medal over to second-place Eddie Melster of Cleveland, who then reached the finals only to lose to McCarthy.

McCarthy, automatically placed at No. 1 in the match play brackets, did not play the first round of the qualifier, but hoped to get in a practice round today before the heavy shooting starts in the match play division Thursday. He took a twilight tour of the layout yesterday.

The 31 low scorers for the 36-hole qualifying grind join McCarthy in the match play rounds, and indications were that a total of 158 or 159 would be necessary to make the grade.

McCarthy was an odds-on choice to retain his crown, with his greatest opposition coming from Servis, Carlin Short of Akron and John Florio and "Hammy" Hedges of Columbus.

There seems to be no stopping the Fleetwing Gas team, first-half champions in the East Liverpool City Softball League.

That was the case with the Young Republicans Tuesday, who collected 10 bingles to the Gas boys' six and erred but twice to the foe's thrice, but dropped the encounter, 2-1, when the leaders pushed over a pair of markers in the sixth.

The Young G. O. P.'s snared their run in the opening frame, but after that Mose Goodball scattered their hits sufficiently to nullify them, Mose, himself, hit a double as did McNutt of the losers. Haul Fullerton pulled an almost certain hit out of the clouds in the seventh to stop what looked like might be a Republican flurry.

Brindley's Tavern spurred in the eighth and 10th to down McHenry's Grocers, scoring two in each of those frames after trailing 5-3.

Lamp was nipped for 10 hits but the Tavern collected 12 off the McHenry flinger, Pollock, with four for five, led the hitting.

A league meeting has been called for tonight at 7:30 at the Trotter Chevrolet garage. Entry fees for the second half must be turned in at the meeting. The protest board will also meet with the officials, sponsors, managers and captains.

WOOD CHOPPER, 101, BUSY

SAN JOSE, Cal.—Jesus Maria Andasola is willing to bet that the former Kaiser will never pass his woodchopping record. Andasola, Mexican resident here, celebrated his 101st birthday by cutting and carrying in his regular day's supply of wood for fuel.

In the West Highland museum, Fort William, Scotland, is one of the strangest portraits ever painted. It looks like nothing but a mess of colored paint; but when a metal cylinder of the right size and shape is placed at a certain spot on the canvas, the reflection mirrored on the cylinder becomes a portrait of Bonnie Prince Charlie, pretender to the British throne in the 18th century.

Brown Bomber Holds Favorite Role In Scuffle

Mike Jacobs Hoping Title Will Stay Over Here

BY GAYLE TALBOT Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 22.—The fight that has overshadowed all else in the fight world for two years comes true at 9 o'clock tonight, when Joe Louis, the 24-year-old Alabama Negro, defends his heavy-weight championship against Max Schmeling, the 32-year-old German, former champion, at the Yankee stadium.

A crowd of 80,000 is expected to pack into the famous baseball arena when the two gladiators shuffle out to meet each other under the bright, hot lights. The throng will have paid close to $1,000,000 to watch the pair belabor each other for 15 rounds, or less in the event of a knockout.

Two sons of the president, a cabinet minister, and celebrities of every stripe will be there to watch the bland German try to repeat the knockout he scored over Louis two years ago in the same arena, and to witness the efforts of the young champion to remove that one blot from his escutcheon.

Experts Favor Louis

Louis remains the 1 to 2 favorite in one of the biggest betting fights of recent years, and is the choice of a majority of several hundred experts. The so-called "fight mob" regards Louis as a virtual clinch, and promoter Mike Jacobs is hoping fervently that the title remains in this country.

The two big men, who have no affection for each other, were meeting at Madison Square Garden at noon, to weigh in and have their respective pulses clocked by the commission medicine man, Dr. William Walker.

Louis, in addition to being eight years younger than his opponent, is a little taller and heavier, though not enough to matter.

It was reported that speculators were getting as much as $100 for choice rinside chairs, originally priced at $30. There is no prospect of a sell-out.

No 'Big Thumb' Gloves

Schmeling won one small victory before they entered the ring. The boxing commission recognized his demand that Louis not be permitted to wear the Chicago, or "big thumb" glove that the champion has favored in his recent fights. Both will have their ham-like hands encased in six-ounce everlast mitts, buttressed by plenty of bandage and tape.

For the first time in this country, Little Joe Jacobs will not be in the German's corner, the commission having refused to restore Joe's license as a second. Nothing bothers Max except the fact that he has to pay both U. S. and German income tax on his purse, which will be 20 percent of the net. Louis will receive the champion's customary 40 percent.

The probability is that Arthur Donovan again will be the referee, though the choice, like that of the two judges will not be known until the fighters are in the ring.

Dramatic Encounter Seen

It might be a great fight. It should be. There is every element that goes to make a furious, dramatic encounter, including an intense desire for revenge on the part of Louis. He feels that Schmeling caught him in 1936 before he had matured, when he was little more than a cocksure kid.

The storm of battle it will be depends almost entirely upon Louis. He has been growing for several weeks that he will spring from his stool and sink Schmeling under a fusillade of blows. If he tries to do that, the explosion should be heard in Green Points, and the ring will be filled with large, falling bodies.

Schmeling, with his right that shocks like an elephant gun, wants nothing better. He figures he is certain to down any fighter who comes to him throwing punches. If Louis charges full-bent, the result probably will be known in the first minute. If he taxes Max's right, shakes it off and continues to unleash his terrible hooks, then the German's ring career has closed after 14 years.

Despite Joe's fiery talk of late, though, there is widespread doubt that he will continue so hot-headed in the cool of this evening. It simply is not his style.

Contracts For Tiff In September With Schmeling Or Louis Drawn Up By Jacobs And Hoffman; Bellhops In New York Won't Take Vander Meer Tips

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Contracts for a Max Baer vs. Schmeling or Louis match in September were drawn up late yesterday by Mike Jacobs and Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager . . . Barney Ross, who retired after the Armstrong fight, still is getting offers to enter the ring . . . All are being declined . . . "Dumb Dan" Morgan, former fight manager who is uncanny at picking winners, made a belated appearance at the Hippodrome yesterday and chose Schmeling.

Johnny Vander Meer is getting a lot of attention here . . . Bell hops at the McAlpin adopted an agreement not to accept tips from the nobis star . . . Rumors that Bill McKee had asked waivers on Vander Meer when he allowed Boston four blows the other day were denied.

Up-state gossip has it that Babe Ruth was installed in the Dodger organization by the bankers and soon will be announced as part owner . . . Ed Leader and Tom Rolles, Yale and Harvard rowing coaches, graduated from the same school and have been living near each other at New London while their boats trained for the Yale-Harvard race and this one, but have never spoken.

Promptly at 9 o'clock each morning when the Red Sox are at home, Lefty Grove enters the club offices, seizes a paper knife and opens the mail for the cashier . . . Jimmy McLarnin is getting rich running a garage in Hollywood . . . Just to give you an idea that Barney Ross meant it when he said he was through with boxing, he won't even come down from Ferndale (where he is playing golf) to see Louis and Schmeling tonight.

Tribe Thumps Yankees, Reds Defeat Giants

Higgins Cracks Record For Successive Hits With 12

BILL BONI Associated Press Sports Writer

Instead of the "Subway Series" that seemed so likely when the big league firing started in April, this fall's big show of baseball may be an all-Ohio proposition.

The Cleveland Indians, who hammered the Yankees back into third place Tuesday, 10-5, are pacing the American league. The Cincinnati Reds, on the strength of the 6-2 battering they handed Carl Hubbell, are just a game and a half behind the National league-leading Giants.

The Giants have dropped their last three starts. The Reds are riding a streak in which they have lost only three of 14 games. They have zoomed out of the second division into second place.

Reds Weren't Fooling

They weren't fooling when they teed off on Hubbell. The southpaw screwballer, making his third unsuccessful attempt for his 200th big league victory, was belted for a pair of homers and three runs in the third, and four hits and three more runs in the seventh. Ival Goodman connected for a four-bagger and a triple.

Meanwhile Big Jim Weaver was balancing the heavy artillery with some fancy four-hit pitching. When he threatened to lose control of the situation, Bucky Walters took charge and didn't allow a hit the rest of the way.

The Reds called on Paul Derringer and the Giants depended on Harry Gumbert today.

In Detroit Frank (Pinky) Higgins wrote a new chapter into baseball's book of big league records and at the same time erased a famous name. The Red Sox third baseman, with four hits in each half of a doubleheader with the Tigers, ran his streak of successive safeties to 12, bettering by one the previous mark set in 1920 by Tris Speaker.

York Homers Twice

Tiger Rudy York hit a homer in each game to tie Boston's Jimmy Foxx for the lead at 19 each, and the Sox, winning the first by 8-3 and losing the nightcap, 5-4, edged into second place again, four points ahead of the Yankees.

It was a big afternoon, too, for Harry Kelley. The veteran Washington right-hander won his first game of the season and made it a good job as he shut out the White Sox, 7-0, on five hits. In the other American league game Oral Hildebrand also pitched five-hit ball and the Browns whipped the Athletics, 5-2.

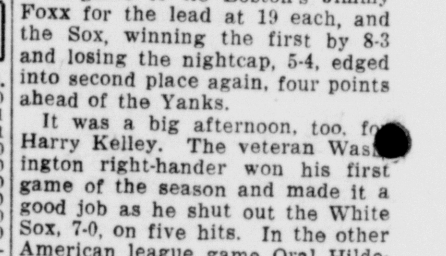

In the National league, the Cubs took advantage of effective relief pitching by veteran Charley Root to shade the Phillies, 4-3. Jim Turner set down the Cardinals with five hits to give the Bees a 3-1 decision, and the Dodgers were left still needing their first victory under the Ebbetts field lights as they bowed to the Pirates 9 to 3.
